

Kelly Robertson, DVM

Kelly Robertson, DVM

Dr. Robertson is an Indiana native. She grew up in rural southern Indiana and has always lived and worked with animals of all sizes. Dr. Robertson attended Indiana University and graduated with a Bachelor of Science in biology in 2001. She completed her Doctorate of Veterinary Medicine at Western University of Health Sciences in 2008. After working in general practice for two years, she joined IndyVet as a full time emergency veterinarian in 2010.

She currently lives in her hometown with her husband, Chad; daughter, Avery; and three furry kids, Kirby, Molly, and Sookie. Outside of work she enjoys spending time with her family and horseback riding.
